Hello,

My name is Mandy, I'm a girl. I'm twelve years old. I live in Bovenkarspel in Holland. I'm in a family with two parents and a little brother; named Ritchie (and a dog; named Levy). I'm on a school; named RSG. It's my second school, but I don't know if you have the same system. First I was on another school. There I just sit in a classroom and do what I got to do. Now every hour rings the bell, then we go to another classroom to have another lesson with another teacher. After two hours lesson we have a break. That's always fun. I do DLE (Dual Language Education) on school. That means we have 75% of our lessons in English, so we can learn English very well. Because I do that I get an order to mail you in English. Do you do DLE (Dual Language Education) on your school too?

About a few months we have something like a festival: Sinterklaas. It's a real Dutch festival:

the story is about an old man: Sinterklaas, and his thousands of sidekicks: Black Pieten. Children pick one of their shoes and put it next to the fireplace, then they sing. When the children sleep, Sinterklaas comes with his horse over the rooftops and then he jumps into the chimney and leaves behind a gift in the shoe of the child. But that's just a story, in fact the parents of the children put a gift in the shoe.

Do you have a real Italy festival?

Greetings from Mandy
